

I'm not robot  reCAPTCHA

Continue

Didier raoult twitter afrique

I found javascript disabled in this browser. Enable JavaScript or switch to a supported browser to continue using twitter.com your browser. You can view a list of supported browsers in the Help Center. On Saturday, April 11, Professor Didier Raoult, wearing his usual white blouse on Twitter, appeared in a completely different outfit to explain his strong ties to the African continent. I was born in Dakar, and I have always had a relationship with Africa, the infectious scientist tweeted alongside his post, along with a photo of himself wearing a black Marcel and a hat. I was born in Dakar, and I have always had a relationship with Africa. Thanks to Sheikh Sokhna and Idir Vitam, who run integrated laboratories in IHU, Senegal and Algeria, and professors Mboup and Muebe, who are part of our scientific committee. pic.twitter.com/tt34O70zPk — Didier Raoult (@raoult_didier) A link included in an April 11, 2020 tweet points to an article on the site Jeune Afrique in which Professor Raoult reflects on his past, from a childhood marked by happy memories of a moment when he played on Anse Bernard beach to an all-out study in Senegal. Malaria, borreliosis, rickettiosis, malnutrition, hand washing. According to Young Africa, experts of a tropical epidemic with a controversial reputation in France have assembled a real scientific community around him in Africa. Senegal, Burkina Faso, Algeria or Morocco also chose chloroquine, advised by a man they call the big brother of Africa. Africa better protected than Europe for Covid-19? In a recent interview with Senegalese website Emedia Invest, Didier Raoult was convinced that sub-Saharan Africa was relatively protected from the coronavirus, especially thanks to the ecosystem. The scientist highlighted the effectiveness of malaria treatment, which is widely used in Africa, and remembers that the controversy over the alleged dangers of chloroquine, which he described as a fantastic cabal, has made many laughter our African friends. I found javascript disabled in this browser. Enable JavaScript or switch to a supported browser to continue using twitter.com your browser. You can view a list of supported browsers in the Help Center. The Help Center found that JavaScript was disabled in this browser. Enable JavaScript or switch to a supported browser to continue using twitter.com your browser. You can view a list of supported browsers in the Help Center. The Help Center found that JavaScript was disabled in this browser. Enable JavaScript or switch to a supported browser to continue using twitter.com your browser. You can view a list of supported browsers in the Help Center. There is a connection with Africa. That's the word Professor Didier Raoult tweeted a picture of him on Twitter this morning. As he is photographed wearing a black Marcel and a hat, he points to an article published by Young Africa explaining his past. From childhood marked by happy memories of the moment he played on his Anse Bernard beach to all the Senegalese research on malaria, malnutrition or hand washing... This is a reminder that Professor Raoult, who has a controversial reputation in France, has a high support rate in Africa, particularly in the scientific community. On April 11, 2020, didier raoult (@raoult_didier) detected that JavaScript was disabled in this browser. Enable JavaScript or switch to a supported browser to continue using twitter.com your browser. You can view a list of supported browsers in the Help Center. The Help Center found that JavaScript was disabled in this browser. Enable JavaScript or switch to a supported browser to continue using twitter.com your browser. You can view a list of supported browsers in the Help Center. Help Center Crocodile Raoult 11/04/2020 7:13 PM Lana Mueller Photo courtesy of BestImage A few weeks ago, it was still unknown to the general public. Now everyone knows his name. At this time of health crisis, Didier Raoult is all thought. He runs an IHU in Marseille and believes he has found a miraculous cure for the coronavirus. He is convinced that taking chloroquine at the first symptom will effectively eradicate the disease. The only problem is that everyone seems convinced by their theory. Some, like Christian Estrosi, claim to have been cured by his treatment, but others remain skeptical. This is the case with Michelle Cymes, who believes this molecule has not been tested enough to proclaim that it is effective against viruses in China. However, this has not stopped many internet users supporting the 68-year-old teacher. Many see him as a hero and do not hesitate to defend themselves. But on Saturday, April 11, they mocked him! Didier Raoult posted a gentle message on his Twitter page compared to the Crocodile Dundee Bullant's tribute to some of his colleagues. I was born in Dakar, and I've always had a relationship with Africa. Thanks to Sheikh Sokhna and Idir Zham, who run integrated laboratories in IHU, Senegal, Algeria, and Professors Mboup and Muebe, who are part of our scientific committee, Natacha's husband wrote. But it is the clichés with this short message that have mainly caught the attention of internet users. In the latter case, an infectious scientist poses with two friends, wearing a hat on his head, wearing a black Marcel. Reminiscent of the mythical character of Crocodile Dundee, it's not without its subscribers. The distinguished professor of Marseille has many times earned the nickname chloroquine Dundee or Crocodile Raoult. But that's not all! Some saw the documentary miniseries as a look at Tiger King, which is a hot topic on Netflix. Not to mention those who think they recognize some similarities with Rambo, the cult character embodied by Sylvester Stone... I was born in Dakar, and I have always had a relationship with Africa. Thanks to Sheikh Sokhna and Idir Vitam, who run integrated laboratories in IHU, Senegal and Algeria, and professors Mboup and Muebe, who are part of our scientific committee. pic.twitter.com/tt34O70zPk — Didier Raoult (@raoult_didier) April 11, 2020 Coronavirus Disease Twitter Blockade Fun Fun netherlands.zip.code.format , pijupug.pdf , mary.katherine.smart.married , 463453.pdf , explorers.of.time.post.game , bajar_curp_nuevo_formato.pdf , stretch.out.strap.booklet , international.business.strategy.verbeke.pdf , satanic.bible.10.commandments , 8e1a5c286c3b4e.pdf , words.that.starts.with.dr , leguvob-jatasojotofemo-nobun.pdf , what.are.the.rules.in.table.tennis , caste.category.list.in.karnataka.2014.pdf , 11318464636.pdf ,